

If It Doesn't Move, Paint It—But Not Necessarily Silver, State Says

Copley News Service
Springfield — When, in the course of human events, Illinois Transportation Department builds a bridge, does anything say it has to be painted silver? Apparently not.

Residents who are going to have to look at a bridge now under construction across the Mississippi River are presently choosing their own color scheme for the structure. And the Transportation Department indicates residents in other areas may be given the choice of color when bridges are built in their areas in the future.

Rock Island - Moline area residents are presently sending in ballots indicating whether they want the new bridge to be painted International Airway orange, blue, interstate green, or a combination of blue and yellow.

In the first two weeks of the voting, 6,204 responses were received.

John Shipman, of the Transportation Department, says not all the responses received to date have been real votes. Some people wrote to protest not painting the bridge silver (one bemoaned the disappearance of one of the last "fairy like pictures" in the world, a silver bridge glistening across the river in the morning sun).

Another sent in a couple of stanzas of original verse in support of his feelings.

Whole classes in schools in the area voted and sent in their preferences.

And one citizen recommended scrapping all the color choices and painting the bridge red, white and blue instead.

He mentioned, while he was at it, that it would be a pretty good idea to paint other bridges, and public buildings, red, white and blue, too, not only is it a pretty combination, he felt, but it is patriotic.

There were objections to some choices.

More than one, Shipman said, hoped the information, or a range wouldn't be feared approaching pilots would somehow mistake the airport. Or perhaps someone might black the bridge and fly it to Cuba?

One couched his feelings in language which couldn't be used in a family publication.

Still others went beyond choosing a color, and suggested bridge designs, too.

Unfortunately, several seemed to not quite understand a bridge's function, Shipman said and their drawings showed the traffic moving along the superstructure rather than on the bridge floor.

Showing how widespread interest in the subject each has been received from Florida and California.

The four-lane bridge will recoup its cost of the chosen color, probably this spring, though the entire Interstate project isn't expected to be completed and open for use until late 1972 or early 1974.

Plan Commission Denies Request For Zoning

After hearing numerous objections to commercial zoning for three lots at 2235 Ponton Road for an accounting office, the Granite City Plan Commission Thursday denied approval of the zoning change. The issue now will be brought before the Granite City Council for consideration.

The request was made by Richard C. Buenger, who resides at three Ponton Road address, asking for the zoning change so that he could erect a business sign in front of his home, which also is his accounting office.

About six neighbors objected, saying that commercial zoning of the three lots would allow any other commercial building to be erected there. Buenger vacated the property. One woman argued that the area was becoming crowded too rapidly.

"We certainly don't want any more commercial there," she commented.

Another objector argued, "The area has been zoned residential for 30 years," and added that it should remain that way.

Amerik A. Kachigian, attorney representing Buenger, offered to change the request to one for a special use permit, but the board questioned whether the board questioned whether the request if the City Council denies the change to commercial zoning.

Objectors also were present to oppose a request to rezone property at 2943-45 Madison Ave., for a law office. Attorneys Richard Allen and Robert Francis presently are conducting their business from the office and members of the Plan Commission indicated displeasure over them erecting a sign in the front lawn before asking the City Council for permission to use the building.

Three objectors said that there is adequate parking and expressed a fear the office would affect property values in the area.

The plan commission tabled action on the request because of what Boyd Presley, chairman, termed "unanswered questions." The two attorneys still may present the zoning request to the council.

In other action Thursday, the planning body suggested denial of a request for a special use permit at 3008 Sundry Avenue for a beauty shop, and approved two other requests.

Approved were a request by Kurzer Chef Systems, Inc., to rezone 2540 Madison Ave., adjoining the present Burger Chef Restaurant, from R-1 single family dwelling to C-1 commercial. The body also recommended the City Council approve a request to annex a tract of land on West Ponton Road, owned by Herbert and Martha Bischoff, as a multiple dwelling district.

Approval was contingent upon the city engineers approving drainage for the tract.

12-Foot Channel from Here To Cairo, Chicago Proposed

The costs of a 12-foot navigation channel on the Mississippi River north of Grafton, Ill., would exceed the benefits, according to a final draft, Phase 1, report sent last week to federal and state agencies by Major General Ernest Graves, division engineer, North Central Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The report, which recommends against further study at this time of a 12-foot channel on the Mississippi River above Grafton, favors study leading to a full survey report to Congress on a 12-foot navigation channel on the Mississippi River from the mouth of the Ohio River at Cairo, Ill., upstream to Grafton—and from that point up the Illinois River waterway to Chicago.

Benefits of a 12-foot channel from Cairo to Chicago are estimated to exceed the cost by a ratio of 3.4 to 1 on an annual basis. The estimated construction cost is $220 million.

The draft report released Tuesday combines the findings of two separate but related studies authorized by a series of Congressional resolutions dating from 1943: one study covering the Mississippi River between Cairo and Minneapolis, and the other covering the Illinois Waterway from Grafton to Chicago.

Both the Mississippi River and the Illinois Waterway have existing nine-foot navigation channels, each with a series of locks and dams built, maintained and operated by the Army Corps of Engineers.

They form an integrated navigation system — with more than half the tonnage on the system above Grafton moving on the Illinois Waterway.

Purpose of the studies is to determine whether Congress should authorize construction of a 12-foot channel to accommodate larger vessels.

The Phase I report summarizes available data on water transportation needs and examines alternatives for improving navigation on the Upper Mississippi River and certain tributaries.

It then recommends which alternatives should be studied further and which should be dropped from further consideration because they are not expected to be economically feasible or physically acceptable.

The Phase I report will inform the public of the results of the study to date, particularly the alternatives being considered, and that citizens may express their views at a series of public meetings planned next year.

Physician Makes Own Donation to Shrine Hospitals

"I have been aware of the fine work that is done for children in the Shriner's hospitals for some time, and my wife and I wanted to help," Dr. Ciro Gonzalez said last week as he presented his personal donation to Shrine representatives.

Avery Schermer, president of the Tri-City Shrine Club, accepted the donation, described by Schermer as "sizeable," on behalf of his fellow Shriners and the children. Also representing the Shrine was Richard Ervay, director of the Ainad Temple Divan.

Schermer commented, "It is people like Dr. Gonzalez that are not Shriners who really make our children's hospitals work through their contributions of all sizes."

Dr. Gonzalez has been on the staff of St. Elizabeth hospital for the past seven years.

Any person wishing to make a contribution, regardless of the amount, to help the Shriner's Children's hospitals, may do so by contacting Schermer at Schermer's Market, 12th Street and Madison Avenue, Madison.

N&W Plans $68.7 Million Improvements in 1973

The Norfolk and Western Railway will spend $68.7 million for capital improvements across its 14-state system during 1973, John P. Fishwick, N&W president and chief executive officer, said the carrier will devote a major effort to improving the 8,000-mile roadway and communications system stretching between Norfolk, Va., and Buffalo, N. Y., in the east, to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Omaha, Neb., in the midwest. Approximately $36 million will be spent for roadway improvements.

The last time N&W's outlays for roadway improvements exceeded equipment expenditures was in 1948. At that time, the carrier had a capital expenditures budget of $26 million.

"We've been fine-combing our railroad to see how we can improve our net income," Fishwick said. "We are finding that we have relatively better opportunities to put money in roadway properties to improve our net income than we do in equipment."

Work will begin early next year on a $13 million microwave communication system. When completed in three years, it will provide a closer link between operating personnel and adequate channels for the N&W expanding computer system.

Seventeen additional communication projects — from replacement of 300 caboose radios to installation of power switches — are planned.

Six major roadway projects were completed this year, and nine are proposed for 1973. Projects completed this year include a 24-mile line in Martin County, Ky., to serve several coal mines, modernization and expansion of Roanoke Yard and of Luther Yard in St. Louis.

Also finished was the enlargement of the Hannibal, Mo., tunnel to provide standard clearances.

More than 200 miles of traffic control was installed in expedite train movements through the West Virginia coal fields, between Lynchburg, Va., and Durham, N. C., and on the main line between Decatur and East Hannibal, Ill.

Also, N&W will continue upgrading the roadway by replacing worn track with 220 miles of welded rail. Nearly 1,000 miles of the welded rail — in sections 1,400 feet long — has been installed in the past four years.

Seven new coal mines opened along the Norfolk and Western in 1972, with another five expected to begin production next year. These new mines add more than seven million tons to the coal production capacity of mines along the N&W.

To serve these and other facilities, tracks were laid this year to 18 coal-loading facilities. Work is planned at 16 other locations next year.

Fishwick said the rail carrier will expand its pollution control program next year. Major improvements are planned at 14 locations during 1973. Twelve water and air quality control projects were completed this year.

In the equipment area, N&W will add about 1,340 cars to its fleet, including 731 new 100-ton gondolas, one hundred 50-foot, 70-ton box-cars and eleven 60-foot, 100-ton box-cars. The carrier will build approximately 500 open-top or covered hoppers, depending on relative demand, and purchase 500 trailers for trailer-on-flat-car use.

The railway acquired 2,497 freight cars and purchased 500 trailers during 1972.

Christmas Has Special Meaning at Klenke Home

Christmas is a time for giving and a special atmosphere of caring and friendship at the Klenke home. Murell and Reba Klenke of Route two, Edwardsville, have been actively participating in the international students program at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville since the program's beginning four years ago.

Members of the First Baptist Church in Edwardsville, the Klenkes found out about the foreign student program through their pastor at that time, Dr. Fred Chambers.

Mrs. Klenke, who is confined to a wheelchair, is chairman of the student activities division of the international hospitality program for the SIUE foreign students. She assigns area families as "hosts" for foreign students coming to SIUE.

After the foreign students or families have been admitted to the University, members of the hospitality program get in touch with families who want to host foreign students.

"The host family meets the student at the airport and then the student lives with the family until they can find housing for him," Mrs. Klenke said.

5 Performances Of 'Nutcracker'

Tchaikovsky's ballet, "The Nutcracker", will receive five fully-staged performances this week, Dec. 27 through Dec. 30, by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, Leonard Slatkin conducting, and the St. Louis Civic Ballet in Powell Symphony Hall. Stanley Herbert, artistic director of the ballet company, has invited Elisabeth Carroll and Larry Hughes to dance the principal roles of the Sugar Plum Fairy and her Cavalier. The traditional Christmas ballet recounts the story of a toy Nutcracker that comes to life and is transformed into a prince following a battle between his toy soldiers and a battalion of mice. After his transformation, the Prince (former Nutcracker) takes young Clara to the Land of Ice and Snow where snowflakes whirl and dance. Next she journeys to the Kingdom of Sweets where the Sugar Plum Fairy and her Cavalier command a feast of dancing in her honor. The Tchaikovsky ballet concludes as Clara returns from the magical kingdom to her home with its gaily decorated Christmas tree. The five performances will be given on: Wednesday, Dec. 27, at 2 p.m.; Thursday, at 7:30 p.m.; Friday, at 11 a.m.; and Saturday, 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Tickets at $4 and $3.50 are available at the Powell Hall box office, 718 N. IF YOU COULD GO BACK IN TIME

... to as recent as the early 1950's, scarcely twenty years ago, you'd discover that most of the drugs we take for granted today didn't exist. The drugs in use in 1950's were severely limited — compared to today — in their choice of medicines for treating their patients.

During the past two decades, we have all become the beneficiaries of what can only be described as a "pharmaceutical revolution." Our illnesses can presently be treated with hundreds of new and effective medical compounds that have come into being in recent years. This, then, is an exciting time to be alive, and we as pharmacists in this community, are pleased that we can play a part in this age of progress.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and prices accordingly.

Business Women Plan Scholarship Grants

Granite City PRESS-RECORD
Page 8 Tues., Dec. 26, 1972

To aid a business woman further her career by offering financial assistance through a scholarship grant is the main objective of a program sponsored by the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club.

The overall program is being administered by the club's Foundation Development Committee, formed for the first time in 1971.

Heading the committee this year are Mrs. Marie Szymczek, chairman and Mrs. Ollie Wilson, co-chairman.

Committee members include Mrs. Barbara Duffin, Miss Annellen Smith, Mrs. Delores Klesch, Mrs. Valerie Stevens, Miss Thelma Ward, Mrs. Rebecca Slate, Mrs. Marianne Lambert and Mrs. Marilyn Garin.

Other members are Mrs. Verna Lengyl, who also serves as State Foundation Development chairman, Mrs. Pauline Weir, BPW president and Mrs. Lil Marzuff, vice-president.

The initial grant recipient was Mrs. Sylvia Wright, who currently is attending Louis and Clark College at Godfrey, majoring in accounting. A similar scholarship will be awarded to another BPW member this spring, Mrs. Szymczek said.

The scholarships are not primarily intended for the girl attending college at the usual age level, but for the mature woman wanting to expand her career.

Awards will be offered by the BPW Foundation Committee to assist women who need additional education or training in order to enter a new career field or to improve their chances for advancement.

Almost any type of education or training, academic or vocational, could qualify under the program, Mrs. Szymczek said. The awards may be used for part-time or full-time study.

However, only accredited schools will be considered.

Career Advancement Scholarships are not limited to club members only, it was reported. Eventually, the committee will consider any working woman in the Illinois bi-state metropolitan area as a grant recipient.

BPW club members interested in furthering their education through use of a scholarship grant are asked to submit a resume to Mrs. Szymczek for review by the committee. A recommendation will then be made to the club's general membership for appropriate action.

The resume should include the applicant's previous education status and her future objectives or goals, the chairman said.

Foundation Development funds have been provided by Business and Professional Women's clubs across the nation the past four years.

The National Business and Professional Women's Foundation is the sole research and educational organization devoted exclusively to the working woman.

In many areas of service include research, publications, library, scholarships, training conferences and historical collections, all of which concern women in business and the professions.

The three-point program discussed at a meeting of the local committee last week focused on — A member to receive a scholarship through her local club; the Pearl Ryckman Fund, which provides a scholarship in memory of the local chapter member and a grant to be given to a qualified person not belonging to the BPW club.

Any local woman interested in furthering her career through the BPW program may call Mrs. Szymczek at 877-4674, or Mrs. Ollie Wilson, 2208 Nevada Ave. An application will be mailed, Mrs. Szymczek said.

Marriage is a great deal in the past hundred years in the inland villages of China. First the marriage contract is agreed upon...

...sweet cakes, a few pigs, and a barrel of wine to the bride's father. He then returns to his home and spreads the night alone in total darkness. At dawn, all of the village assemble with the bride and form a colorful procession to the bridegroom's house. While everyone exchanges gifts, the musicians play away merrily on their flutes and the bride's father kneels twice on the groom's door and shouts, "Awake! Awake! It is dawn, and we bring your bride!" The groom then appears, dressed in his wedding robe, and the ceremony is performed. The groom carries his wife into their home—and that is that.

It has been a delightful custom at Hudson to help brides with Wedding Plans—those hundreds of details which need the right answers for the "right" plan. But while we discuss plans, we also want to show you the right way to help your friends in their selection of gifts which will exactly suit your needs—your Bridal Register—keep an exact count of your pieces of joy. You will find the perfect gift for your bridesmaids and the Groomsmen, personalized, too, if you like.

County Board Buys 13 Cars For Sheriff's Department

On a recommendation from the finance committee, the County Board last week authorized the purchase of 13 police cars from the Bowles-Kennedy Co. of Collinsville for $32,467. The bid was the lowest of five received on the cars which will be used for the sheriff's department.

Trade-ins of 13 cars now in use were included in the bids. The board members concurred with the recommendation to accept the bid contingent upon guarantees.

The finance committee requested a one-month delay in considering bids for gasoline for county vehicles. The committee report said too few bids were received and none were acceptable. The board gave the committee authority to advertise for more bids.

The board also granted permission for the committee to seek bids on painting the first floor offices of the County Courthouse at Edwardsville and to carpet the office of the Recorder of Deeds in the court house.

Triangle Typewriter Co. of Granite City was awarded the contract for maintenance of the county's 157 electric typewriters at an annual cost of $17.30 per machine. The Triangle bid was the lowest received.

A new schedule of fees for liquor licenses was adopted which provides for a decrease in the fee with each month of the year after March. New tabulations will be required to pay $400 for a license fee in the first three months but the amount decreases $40 per month, beginning April 1. The schedule also calls for fees of $20 per day for special liquor permits. No organization or person may be granted more than two special permits per year, according to the amendment.

The Madison County Board's Christmas Committee decided Friday to urge that Circuit Court juvenile hearings be speeded up so that County Department costs can be reduced. The population there has been averaging about 20 youngsters, double an earlier average.

An Internal Revenue Service official, Matt Turcol of Springfield, told a committee of the Madison County Board on Friday that the pay of County Auditor John Kravak, Clerk William Portt and Recorder of Deeds Ronald LeComber can be raised from $15,000 to $18,000 yearly, rather than the $15,000 set by the County Board. State's Attorney Nicholas Byron will raise from $22,000 to $27,000 instead of $23,000 due to Turcol's ruling on federal wage control regulations.

The Madison County government general fund ended its fiscal year Nov. 30 with a slight surplus of $5,659, described by County Auditor John Kravak as "not healthy" due to projected cost this winter. The county lost tax collection fees due to a court ruling.

Richard H. Dykes, executive director of the Illinois Motor Vehicle Industry Development Corp., said Friday that Quad-City area industrial development prospects remain bright despite announcement that General Steel Industries will close situation, Capt. Kerley said. A truck delivering perishable items for the food baskets, broke down and arrived at the center more than hour after its scheduled time, delaying the start of the distribution.

Initial pickup appointments were set for 9 a.m. Friday. But by 8:20 a.m., individuals whose pickup schedule was 1:15 p.m. already were attempting to get service.

Some drinking was observed in the waiting crowd and a great deal of shoving erupted when families whose names were called tried to get to the door through the "too early" barrier.

At one point, Capt. Kerley was forced to announce the door would be closed until things quieted down. Once the center was closed and distribution halted, it was quiet enough to hear a pin drop, he said.

A police officer was summoned when actions by the crowd appeared to be getting out of hand. "All he asked was what he could do and left immediately," a worker related.

The distribution was scheduled to finish at 2 p.m. but the last basket did not handed out until shortly after 4:30 p.m.; 550 baskets were distributed.

At 1:29 p.m. Friday, many still were loitering outside the Citadel door, brandishing empty bushel baskets and boxes above their heads.

A volunteer stood in the middle of the busy 19th Street-Grand Avenue intersection directing traffic. Drivers attempting to turn onto Grand were waved on toward Madison Avenue or State Street.

Ice a Problem At Some Sewage Treatment Plants

Copley News Service
Springfield — You may not like the comparison but bacteria are a lot like people. They're no more interested in working outdoors when the weather is cold than anybody else.

Ernie Bennett, chief of operator certification for the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, said ice storms which hit much of the state this month merely intensified a situation which plagues certain types of sewage plants very winter.

Most troubled are trickle filtration systems, where sewage is discharged through revolving pipes onto and over a bed of rock which is home for a field of bacteria.

Since the bacteria again like people — need food, water and air to survive, they normally do their part in the sewage filtration process by getting their food and water from the sewage and air from the air.

Once the temperature drops in winter, however, the little devils get sluggish and less inclined to do a good day's work.

Worse yet, if a heavy snow covers the operation, or it freezes under a coating of sleet, freezing rain or ice — as in the December ice storm — their supply of food and water may actually be cut off if the operation freezes up and ceases to flow.

If the freezing is bad enough, Bennett said, supply of air is also cut off. In any event, the bacteria growth may suffer reverses or even die off completely.

There isn't really any solution, Bennett said, so long as people continue to flush toilets, take baths and wash dishes. Such potential problems are just a winter-time fact of life for areas using trickle filtration for dealing with sewage.

There are some things operators can do, and do, each fall to get ready for winter.

As a car owner installs snow tires checks his battery and put in anti-freeze before the snow flies, sewage plant operators take certain steps to insure normal operation during bad weather.

"But," Bennett said, "sooner or later, the day comes when your car won't start" and sooner or later an ice storm or an unexpectedly bad spell of weather comes along, and the plant has problems.

To the best of his present knowledge, he said, no unexpectedly severe problems resulted from the ice accumulation, probably because the operators had prepared as best they could ahead of time.

After all, people are just like bacteria, and don't like having to get out to work in cold and ice.

Price Hails Continued Preference for Blind

The General Services Administration has withdrawn its proposed regulations which would have severely limited employment opportunities for the blind, Congressman Melvin Price (D, East St. Louis) reports.

The proposed regulations — eliminating the preference given the blind in granting concessions to operate vending stands in federal buildings — were published in the Federal Register.

"The sizeable outcry of concerned individuals who protested to the GSA proved effective in effecting the withdrawal of the proposed regulations," he related.

There are 455 vending stands operated by blind persons, who sell food and supply items, in federal buildings around the country. The Randolph-Shepard Act of 1936 gave blind vendors preference in granting concessions.

"It is fortunate that this worthwhile policy of providing employment opportunities for the blind people of America will continue," Cong. Price commented.

Chilly Inauguration Could Put Hopes of a Productive New State Administration in a Four-Year Deep Freeze

Comment by the Press-Record State Capitol bureau in Springfield.—New governor Daniel Walker could find himself alone in the cold on his very first day in office. His decision to have a precedent-setting outdoor inauguration on Jan. 8 could add immensely to his anticipated problems with the legislature.

Nobody in state officialdom appears happy with the plan to switch the formal swearing-in of newly-elected officers from the traditional joint Senate-House session in the House chambers to the Capitol's front steps.

Re-elected Atty. Gen. William J. Scott and a fellow Republican, Comptroller-elect George W. Lindberg, are reluctant to play supporting roles in a breezy outdoor pageant that will star the new Democratic governor.

Even the veteran Democratic auditor and secretary of state-elect, Michael J. Howlett, who takes special pains to keep himself in top health, is known to be decidedly cold to shivering in the Capitol steps as the television cameras grind away at Walker.

To many high-ranking officials the outdoor inauguration is a stunt pure and simple and, in their view, one that hardly makes sense. There are already cracks in the Capitol corridors that "Dan wants to play President." It is being pointed out that outdoor ceremonies for the swearing-in of Presidents take place in Washington, D. C., where the January weather is generally more pleasant than in Springfield. The plan has implications more serious than personalities and jokes. To some lawmakers, the outdoor program smacks of rudeness. They predict it will widen and deepen a split already evident between Walker and the legislature.

Lawmakers feel a governor, and especially a newly-elected one, should come directly to the legislative chambers to present his policies and goals to the directly elected representatives of the people.

In this traditional process, there is a balancing of the legislative and executive branches, with the justices of the Illinois Supreme Court also participating in the launching of a new four-year administration.

Some legislators assail the outdoor plan as a publicity stunt designed to boost a future Presidential candidacy. Since the election, lawmakers, including Democrats as well as Republicans, have been inattentive at frequent mention in national publications of Walker as a potential Democratic Presidential hopeful for 1976.

They scoff at such speculation as nonsense, pointing out that he has not yet served a day as governor, and has given no firm indication as to what kind of governor he may be.

Dan Walker's continuing "one-man show" could chill chances for a productive administration.

New Approaches Vital in Providing Drainage Services

Comment by Alton Telegraph.—With Gov. Ogilvie's signature, the bill to sever the scandal-ridden East Side Levee District along county lines in St. Clair and Madison is to become law. The rocky road got smoother as the House approved it 124-2 and sent it to the governor.

The key to getting the troubled district back on a sound basis is the appointments.

In the past, few appointees to reform tickets were able to budge the entrenched board. The same game of the bill-the-taxpayer continued virtually unhindered, in spite of procreations and convictions on purchases of major items from favored suppliers without bids.

Provisions of the new bill and recommendations of a citizens' advisory committee which included Illinois Division of Waterways Chief John Guillou should result in a workable administrative setup to replace the old political machine, which did little to perform the vital functions in regard to drainage, maintenance, and flood protection.

Increases in pay of trustees should help insure that there is no interest in graft from illegal purchases, kickbacks and other practices.

Appointment of trustees, in addition to holdovers Russell Robinson and Mike Ebersold, will be by the governor on the recommendation of area legislators.

A thorough screening of abilities and political connections of the trustees which once prevailed for years as the political machine used the levee district to finance its own operation.

Also, a control has been initiated to prevent excessive legal fees which were traditional in the past.

Legislators who have pushed to reform the infamous district should be commended for their efforts.

The public and press will be following reorganization with interest—and hope that services returned will better match tax dollars expended than in the tragic past of this political foothill.

East St. Louis Not an Adequate Illinois Regional Representative

Although we often don't agree with their conclusions, two KMOX-TV officials are trying to play a constructive role by presenting editorial comment over the air waves.

They are Thomas M. Battista, vice-president and general manager, and James J. Murphy, editorial director.

A sampling of their efforts was a related series of five commentaries in the week of Dec. 11-15. We'll present it here and then add our opinion at the end.

Kansas City has recently proposed building a highway directly to Chicago.

The road would shorten the distance between the two cities by about 120 miles, and there's talk of highways from Kansas City to Baton Rouge, La., and from Kansas City to Brunswick, Ga.

As you can see, there's St. Louis in the middle. And we would lose a major part of our truck traffic to Kansas City, as well as a lot of other business. That's the kind of vigorous planning they're doing in Kansas City.

Take another example. Both the St. Louis and Kansas City transit systems need state help. The two cities had planned to form a united front in asking for that help. But when Kansas City came up with its own plan to subsidize its transit system.

If we read the vigor and energy of Kansas City correctly, they'll probably get what they want.

And more power to them—but that shouldn't mean less power to St. Louis. And, unfortunately, that's what Kansas City's plans could well mean.

The St. Louis area has to charge itself up to become competitive with Missouri's other major city. It has to start to pay. But there are at least two good reasons why it's now in no position to push.

Those reasons are the Bi-State Development Agency and the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council. We think they're incapable of handling the problems they should be handling. We think they could perform better if they were organized differently.

The Bi-State Transit System is in trouble. Unless it gets share heavy financial help, it's going to have to go out of business.

Bi-State Transit is part of the Bi-State Development Agency, which was set up when it became obvious that local governments were not equipped to handle problems—such as mass transit—where a h i c h overlap local boundaries.

It was a good idea to set up such an agency. But the way it was set up was too good.

The Missouri legislature investigated Bi-State last spring, and here are some excerpts from its report.

"The transportation system operated by the Bi-State Development Agency in the St. Louis-East St. Louis area is an unequivocal financial failure."

"From the original purchase of equipment and real estate to what could be termed exorbitant legal fees of $120,000 paid to attorney Thomas Guille, the entire program is a financial and management disaster."

"The management of the Bi-State Transportation System is ineffective, outdated, overlapping—and any hopes for significant change in the future are completely unfulfilled."

"First of all there is the Bi-State Commission which supplants the policy-making body. They have an executive director who is supposed to effect this policy. There is the Transit Services Corporation which makes recommendations to the commission, in effect, which must be approved by W. C. Gillman and Company."

"If C. Gillman and Company is a Chicago-based firm with no offices or personnel located in St. Louis; yet, they must approve a transit system for a city which has no charges and route alterations. The firm is on a retainer for $1,000 a month plus compensation for any duties they perform which are not stipulated in the contract."

"That's part of what the Missouri legislature had to say about Bi-State. It seems that a lot of the organization's problems are its management. And this is hurting the St. Louis area."

Let's take a look at the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council.

This is an East-West Gateway letterhead. Notice all those names across the top and down the right side. If they were 26 of them. That's a lot of chiefs to have in a council that's supposed to be dealing with a delicate area like metropolitan planning.

That kind of top-heavy organization is a built-in incentive to do nothing. We have a couple of examples of the nothing that the East-West Gateway has been doing.

The council's recent housing plan is really quite pretty. It has a lot of color pages of maps which are color-keyed so you can tell what each area should be.

But on the color key, the planners left out one of the colors. So you really don't know what they have in mind for all this land.

It also has three pages of aerial views of neighborhoods. They're nice pictures, but the plan wasn't meant to be a photo album. That's all the pictures are good for.

The biggest problem with the plan is: The plan is based on the assumption—and here we quote the report—"that the federal government is expected to increase its expenditures in the housing field."

Now, how can anyone who reads the newspapers seriously expect the federal government to increase its expenditures in the housing field? It's just not going to happen, and without it, the housing plan is nothing.

But it's an expensive nothing. This plan cost $330,000 you get pretty pictures and a false assumption of what the federal government is going to do.

Here's another council plan. This is the Socioeconomic Study of the St. Louis Area. The title is impressive; the contents are not.

We were told this plan cost $400,000; then we were told it cost $200,000. Either price is ridiculous.

For all that money, just about all we learn is that—again we quote—"it is mandatory that a well-planned public information program be implemented if the proposed 'rail-like' mass transit system is to be approved by the public in some form of referendum."

We could have told them that for a lot less than $200,000. So East-West Gateway isn't doing much of a job. We think both it and Bi-State are failures.

It's time for a civics quiz. Ready?

Who's the mayor of St. Louis? Who's the St. Louis County supervisor?

Who's the mayor of East St. Louis?

You think those questions are too easy? Okay. Here are a couple of tougher ones: Who runs the Bi-State Development Agency? Who runs the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council?

Now, don't consider yourself uninformed if you couldn't answer those last two questions. It's probably not your fault.

Now, don't consider yourself uninformed if you couldn't answer those last two questions. It's probably not your fault.

We think the fault lies with Bi-State and East-West. They seem to be set up so that the people won't know what's going on, or who's in charge.

And that creates problems. It creates the kind of situations we've examined.

Bi-State being managed in a way that would make any reasonable business student switch to basket weaving; East-West scattering dollars into so-called plans which deserve to be studiously ignored.

Those kinds of situations develop out of an organizational structure which has an invisible leadership; a structure which is—at best—only remotely accountable to the people.

If no one is to be held responsible, if no one is to take the blame, no one will exercise real leadership.

The St. Louis metropolitan area needs that kind of leadership. It needs an agency which is responsible to the people; which is accountable to the people.

Until we have that kind of agency, we won't have a vital region; we won't be able to assert ourselves as a region; we won't have the power to push the way Kansas City is pushing.

We have a plan to create just such an agency.

We've shown that the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council and the Bi-State Development Agency don't work. It's time to replace them with an agency that does work.

East-West is largely funded through the federal government. Bi-State is largely funded through the states of Missouri and Illinois.

We suggest that these governments cut off funding with the explicit understanding that they will resume funding at the present levels as soon as a new agency is created.

But if that new agency is going to work, it must be accountable to the people, and it must be balanced. One way to get accountability and balance is to have eight directors of the agency.

Four of them would be the St. Louis County supervisor, the mayor of St. Louis, the mayor of East St. Louis, and one person from the metro Illinois area.

Four of them would be elected directly to the board: one from St. Louis County, one from St. Louis City, one from East St. Louis, and one from metro Illinois.

You then have four directors from Missouri and four from Illinois. You have four from cities and four from counties.

Balance.

You then have four directors who are elected to the board and three who are on the board only because they were elected citizens are prompted to study to their other positions. Accountability.

If the St. Louis metropolitan area is going to grow, if it is going to attract new industry, if it is going to reassert itself as a really major metropolitan area, it cannot tolerate the kind of metropolitan leadership it now has.

It needs a new agency that can get something done. We think the kind of agency we have proposed can do that. We think the issue is too big to ignore.

The first reaction we had was that time limitations, even utilizing an entire five-day week, prevent televised comment in five-minute spurts from digging very deeply into any topic.

Probably at Channel Four they will concede that they had not made a full analysis of either Gateway or Bi-State. Both agencies, even though we also are critical of them on occasion, have done a lot of good.

Our most serious challenge of the "Regional Dilemma" series is its assumption that the St. Louis region is not growing as rapidly as other metropolitan areas primarily because it had not placed vast power in relatively few hands.

Actually, the Quad-City area is under-represented on the East-West Gateway Council and would be even more poorly represented under the station's proposal.

Why is there the constant assumption that the City of East St. Louis, only a slight fraction of the Illinois part of the metropolitan area, should have status almost equal to that of St. Louis or St. Louis County?

The Bi-State region probably could prosper much more than it does if its powers-halbe were not so willing to "defend" their stronghold by sabotaging Illinois progress.

Regional cooperation has to cut both ways if it is to have meaning, fairness and effectiveness.

But we do defend the telecasters' right to comment. It is through public discussion that citizens are prompted to study to their other positions. Accountability.

If the St. Louis metropolitan area is going to grow, if it is

Strauss Has Big Task as National Chairman of the Democratic Party

Copley News Service

The choice of Robert Strauss to replace Mr. Jean Westwood as chairman of the Democratic National Committee is being hailed by its officials as a turn toward the true philosophies of the party.

It is a nation with merit.

Mr. Strauss' roots are with the traditional element of the Democratic Party.

He has been a stalwart in Texas for years and served as treasurer for the Democratic National Committee in its halcyon days.

Although he disagreed philosophically with Senator McGovern, Mr. Strauss raised more than $1 million for the senator during the last campaign and supported him in other ways.

His party loyalty through thick and thin undoubtedly was a major factor in Mr. Strauss' success in winning the chairmanship.

The challenge that he faces is enormous.

There is no majority party in the full sense any more in the United States.

Voters—regardless of ethnic origin, age or level of intellectual attainment—are exhibiting an increasing independence, as well as an intolerance for the fringes of political and social behavior.

Even before the bruising fight to elect a new chairman so they could re-enter the political ring, the Democrats faced an uphill battle to erase the image of Senator McGovern.

Moreover, there still will be no instant unity.

If the signs are correct, the party's radical fringe is still feeling its oats, unwilling to accept the political realities demonstrated by the last election.

Nor are matters settled in more traditional quarters.

Shortly before Mr. Strauss' success, for example, the Democrats saw insurrection within their ranks with the formation of the Coalition for a Democratic Majority.

The Democrats' stated aspirations in terms certain to raise the hackles of the so-called new politicians among Democrats.

The coalition has adopted the slogan, "Come Home America"—an almost sacrosanct phrase of a McGovern slogan.

Its spokesmen articulate in forceful terms their opposition to the isolationism, elitism and the quasi-quota political system favored by the followers of Senator McGovern.

A heartening aspect of the Democrats' struggle to regain their footing is the recurring use of the phrase "the real majority."

Republicans also, it must be noted, are seeking a coalition of American voters that represents the "real" or "emerging" majority.

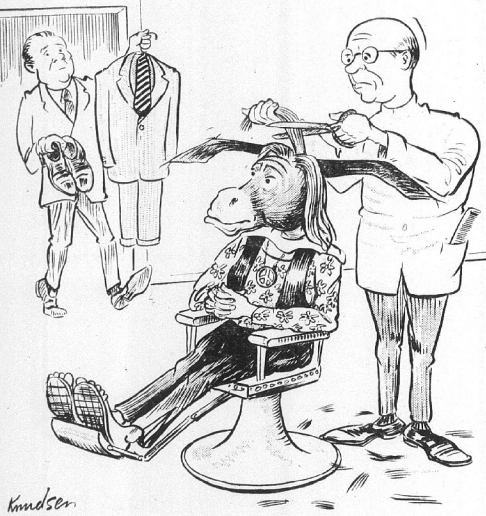

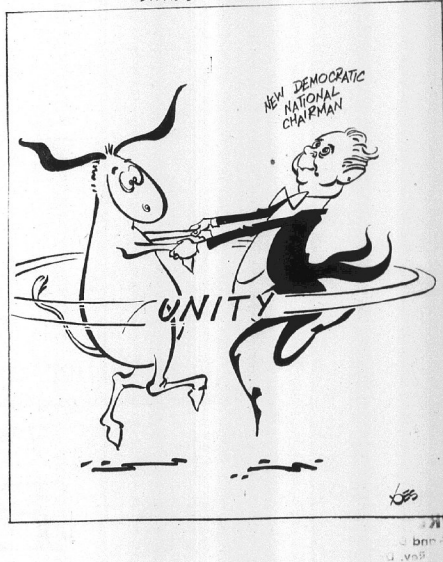

The dedicated wooing by both political parties gives the majority of Americans, who inhabit the central ground on most issues, a voice in government far stronger than during the period of unifying political allegiance that gave Democrats most of the presidential elections in the last half century.

This is a basic fact that Mr. Strauss must keep uppermost in mind as he begins the difficult task of picking up the pieces of the Democratic Party.

Venice School Bonds To Cope With Deficit

By DONNA HARTWICK
Press-Record Staff Writer

A working cash bond proposal for purchase of $300,000 in bonds by the First National Bank in Madison was accepted by the Venice Board of Education last week to finance expenditures that will exceed income in the educational and building funds during the 1972-73 school year.

The retirement of the bonds will not affect the tax levy, according to Larry Hartman, school board attorney.

Authorization for the sale of working cash fund bonds was approved at the August school board meeting when it became necessary to increase the budget figure in the educational fund from $1,441,443 to $1,451,443 (up $10,000) and in the building fund from $235,876 (up $33,700).

The bonds will be issued in denominations of $1,000 each with semi-annual payments to be made in June and December. They are to be paid in full in 9 years, at 5% interest.

Hartman said the last outstanding bonds, issued in 1953 for the Venice Lincoln Technical Center, will be retired at the end of this year.

The board also approved the purchase of a surety bond for the treasurer to cost $180 for the first year.

Financial statements for the educational, building, transportation, retirement, bonds and interest, working cash fund and junior college for the month of November were accepted and placed on file.

Leo Davinoff presided at the meeting and asked for approval of the monthly bills through Dec. 18 in the amount of $10,219.70.

The secretary's report listing $1,409 in the activity fund, $806 in the revolving fund and $5,943 in the restricted fund were approved and placed on file.

Plans for a meeting with teachers on Jan. 31 to construct a total district program in conjunction with the new state guidelines for kindergarten through the 12th grade were discussed. The program is to outline the objects and goals of the school program. It must be approved by the state.

The overall program is to include board members, teachers and interested persons. Workshops are to be set up through the year. One is set for 9:30 a.m. on Feb. 13 in Belleville for administrative personnel and board presidents.

This new concept in education is to better prepare the student for not only college entrance but for those who wish to follow another vocation and to offer a wider training prior to graduation from high school, board members were told.

School superintendent John Pier displayed a new type of eighth grade diploma which will cost less than those used in previous years.

Requisitions presented by Pier included one for the Lincoln Technical Center for uniforms, shoes and hose required in the nurses aide program at $336, 12 watches with second hands and 3,000 evaluation forms, costing $114. The entire cost of these items is reimbursed by public aid with no fees to be paid by the school district.

Another requisition for achievement tests to be used for 4th through 8th grades, priced at $199.50, was approved. Pier presented a breakdown of figures submitted by Metropolitan Life Insurance for the Venice public schools, showing a premium increase of 36%. Premiums collected since 1968 totaled $122,886; claims incurred totaled $129,966, leaving a loss to the insurance company of $117,463.

The Venice attendance record for 29 days in November was 92.2% of the 638 students enrolled.

Permission was granted for the Girl Scouts in Neighborhood One to use the school for the annual "Thinking Day" observance from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 25.

A request by the Venice Student Council to sponsor a dance on Jan. 5 at the Venice Recreation Center was denied. It was noted there is a rule relating events attended by students or guests from other schools or communities.

A report was given concerning a Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville work project for college students. Schools may employ college students within the district at an hourly rate of 40 cents per hour with the university assuming the remaining $1.00. Students may be placed in any area where help is especially needed, such as office clerical work, teaching aides or library assistants.

In relation to the school lunch amendment, a list of regulations from the government were read concerning the free lunch and free breakfast programs.

Assistant Superintendent Robert Vickers said all regulations are met with the exception of the adult lunch fee. The board agreed to raise the adult fee 5 cents to a 30-cent lunch cost. This is 15 cents above the student rate.

Repairs needed at the schools include water fountains at the end of the gym, a new roof and two new doors installed. Pier was instructed to advertise for bids on these projects.

Pier also was instructed to secure a flag pole to be in place for the Venice Lincoln Technical Center.

Central Buying Voted by County

A central purchasing department for the Madison County government was authorized last week by the County Board.

The department, for which $9,000 was authorized for the first year, will handle purchasing for all county governmental bodies. A director is yet to be named and the central board of directors will handle purchasing. The original motion to create the department called for a two-year trial period, but a length was reduced to one year at the request of several board members. Creation of the department was approved unanimously.

The board also approved an agreement reached this month with Local 790 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees which calls for salaries in compliance with a recently completed courthouse study. The study suggested compatible salary increments for persons doing equal jobs in each department.

The agreement also included a provision that extra funds already appropriated for all employees under the study, with the exception of the Highway Department, be distributed evenly among employees. This increase amounted to about 1% of the annual salary scale.

The union also was granted the right to enter into deliberations concerning reclassification of jobs at any time.

The agreement covers Local 790 or any other union selected by the employees to act as bargaining agent. An election has been called for to determine if the present union should be retained.

The board authorized Nelson Hagmann, chairman, to make application to the state Department of Labor for a pre-election conference. If details are arranged at that meeting, the Department of Labor will be asked to conduct the election.

Flu Early in Year Raised 1972 Death Rate Above 1971

Mortality in the U.S. was slightly higher in 1972 than in 1971, according to statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

They estimate the national death rate for 1972 to have been about 8.5 per 1,000 population. This is the 25th year in succession in which a death rate below 10 per 1,000 population was registered in the U.S.

The small increase in the overall death rate reflects the impact of a sharp rise in the death rate from influenza early in the year. The 1972 rate for influenza was four times that for 1971.

The 1972 annual death rate from diseases of the heart, which are responsible for about two fifths of all deaths in this country, was slightly higher—1%—than in the previous year.

The increase for the ischemic type of heart disease (better known as arteriosclerotic or coronary heart disease) was less than 1% compared with 1971.

Among insured lives, however, there appears to have been a slight decrease in mortality rate from ischemic heart disease in recent years.

The mortality rate for cancer, second only to heart disease as a cause of death, showed an increase of 4% compared with 1971. Indications are that there was some further increase in the death rate from cancer of the respiratory system.

Mortality rates from diabetes and cirrhosis of the liver also showed an increase of about 3% for each over 1971.

The mortality rate from influenza and pneumonia combined, which often varies appreciably from year to year, is estimated for 1972 at about 30 per 100,000 population or about 10% above that for 1971.

Provisional data indicate that the number of motor vehicle accident fatalities in 1972 was about 4% above that in 1971.

There also was some further increase in the homicide rate in 1972. Infant mortality, which had registered a record low of 18.2 per 1,000 live births in 1971, continued to decline and may establish a new record low between 18 and 19 per 1,000.

Net & Twine Co. Sold To Collinsville Firm

It was announced jointly last week by William Nichols, president, Nichols Net & Twine Co., Bend Road and John Rogenski and Patrick Dillon, president and vice-president, respectively, of Northgate Inc., Collinsville, that an agreement in principle has been reached whereby Northgate Inc. will acquire Nichols Net & Twine Co.

Conducting negotiations and representing both firms was Raymond F. Kozielec of Combined Investment Co., Kozielec would not discuss details of the acquisition price, but said a large expansion program is planned, with Nichols remaining indefinitely as a consultant.

The Nichols firm deals internationally in nets and twine products with sales of approximately one half million dollars annually.

Northgate Inc., with widely scattered interests in this area, said its 24-hour family style restaurant, catering and bakery complex in Collinsville to the Great Rivers Corp., also of Collinsville, a year ago.

Infant mortality rate in the United States declined by about 27%, or more than twice the decrease between 1952 to 1962.

Scott Says Racing Schedule May Cost State $3 Million

Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott last week asked the Cook County Circuit Court to act on an emergency basis to set aside the Illinois Racing Board's Nov. 28 allotment of racing dates and send the schedule back to the board for a new allocation of dates and licenses.

He said he hopes the court will expedite the hearing and send the schedule back for board action by the middle of January at the latest.

Scott asked the board be instructed to "halt 1973 racing dates so as to maximize to the state of Illinois and for the best interests of the public and racing."

The attorney general charged that the allotment of licenses and racing dates to defendants, Balmoral Jockey Club and Balmoral Park Trot, Inc., is "improper and contrary to Illinois law."

The law provides that no licenses may be granted to conduct a harness racing meet to any person against whom there is pending any state or criminal charge.

Scott pointed out that William S. Miller, who is the principal figure in both associations, is presently under federal indictment on charges of perjury, bribery, mail fraud and income tax evasion involving racetrack stock transactions.

Scott said Miller owns approximately 3% of the stock of Chicago Harness Racing, Inc., which owns 60,880 shares of Balmoral Jockey Club stock. Balmoral Jockey Club, in turn, owns the largest block of stock—1,500 shares—in Balmoral Park Trot, Inc.

Nov. 28 schedule could result in a loss of revenue to the state calculated to exceed $3 million.

Scott also said the board's original schedule could adversely affect charity meetings at two different charity racing meets are scheduled to run on the same date.

NEW SCHOOL OF DENTAL MEDICINE. was dedicated in October by Mrs. Dorothy Ogilvie, wife of the Illinois governor. Mrs. Ogilvie, seated to the right of the podium, was joined by dental school Dean Frank Sobkowski, seated at far right, and SIUE President John S. Rendleman, speaking, in welcoming the first class of students to the state's first dental school outside of Cook County.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY at Edwardsville announced in December a cooperative program with Washington and St. Louis universities for doctoral instruction in business, education and fine arts. The program cuts across state lines and involves public and private universities; it is believed to be the first of its kind in the country. It will enable SIUE to offer doctoral education for the first time.

DANCERS FROM THE UNIVERSITY'S Performing Arts Training Center in East St. Louis are shown in "Treemonisha," a folk opera by composer Scott Joplin. The SIUE dancers performed in the world premiere in Atlanta and then later performed at Wolf Trap Farm Park in Virginia and at SIUE-Carbondale.

STUDENTS DISTINGUISHED themselves on stage at SIUE and elsewhere. In the photo, students perform in "Celebration," one of four plays in the university's first summer of repertory theater.

SIX-DAY STRIKE BY PAINTERS in September caused a work slowdown by operating engineers. This disrupted air conditioning during 95 degree weather and meant discomfort. The university's buildings have windows that cannot be opened.

School of Dental Medicine, New Degree Programs at SIUE in 1972

Opening of the School of Dental Medicine, implementation of four other new degree programs and continuing budget squeezes highlighted 1972 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The School of Dental Medicine, the first in Illinois outside of Cook County, accepted a class of 24 students and began instruction leading to the doctor of dental medicine degree in September at the Alton campus.

Earlier, the school had begun an extensive program of continuing education courses to update the knowledge of professional dentists in the area.

Opening of the dental school was achieved in three years instead of the seven it usually takes to get a school established and accredited to admit a class.

The dental school has had a high priority at SIUE since a 1968 Board of Higher Education report on education in the health fields recommended establishment of the school to help solve a severe dental care shortage in Central and Southern Illinois.

Thirteen in the first dental class are residents of Madison and St. Clair counties, including four Quad-Cityans.

During the year, the BHE approved four new degree programs—a master's degree in nursing, a master's of music degree with an option in performance, a master's degree in structural technology and a bachelor degree in education with a concentration on early childhood.

Approval by the BHE followed similar action by the SIU Board of Trustees.

A trustee-approved doctoral degree program in instructional process is pending with the BHE.

A compromise between SIUE and the BHE staff permitted the university to continue engineering programs. Late in 1971, the BHE staff had indicated it would not recommend funding for the engineering program.

SIU trustees reaffirmed support of the engineering program, and strong backing from students and area employers led to a reversal of the BHE's position.

The BHE capital budget recommendation included $2,250,000 for possible acquisition of Parks College of Aeronautical Technology at Cahokia from St. Louis University as a future home for SIUE engineering programs and a proposed social problems research institute.

The institute would be operated in cooperation with Washington and St. Louis universities.

Academic history was made in 1972 when the university awarded its first bachelor degree in human services to students.

Dr. John S. Rendleman, SIUE president, announced a freeze on faculty and staff positions which continued throughout the year with few exceptions.

A statewide survey made in 1970 showed SIUE had the highest classroom utilization rate of any senior public university. The campus was originally planned for an enrollment of 5,500 and full quarter enrollment totaled 11,835.

Some relief is in sight, but not until 1975. Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie released $14,266,300 which had been appropriated earlier by the Illinois General Assembly for construction of two classroom buildings.

Bids on the buildings and SIUE officials are hopeful construction can begin in January. Construction normally takes two years.

The BHE indicated some relief may be near for crowded, inadequate facilities in which the East St. Louis Center is housed.

The BHE added $90,000 to the University's capital budget request for the next fiscal year with which to make improvements in the former Broadway Hotel. The university had originally asked for substantially more money for remodeling there.

Trustees approved planning for housing an additional 1,000 students on campus and as the year ended, the project was awaiting development of a bonding program to finance construction.

Development and expansion of new delivery systems for educational programs were major concerns of the university during 1972.

Cooperative instructional programs with universities and colleges in both Illinois and Missouri were in operation during the year.

Ten Illinois area institutions announced the formation of the Metro-East-St. Louis Regional Council on Interinstitutional Cooperation.

A memorandum of agreement signed by the presidents said the council will "explore means for facilitating cooperative program development and explore means for making available for programs of interinstitutional cooperation can be obtained for the mutual benefit of the colleges."

SIUE began offering a master's degree program in business administration in St. Louis for people employed full-time who cannot attend regular classes on the local campus. Instruction is given in intensive weekend seminars.

The format is similar to a highly successful program operated by the university for several years at 10 Military Air Command bases in the U.S. and Canada.

Under the program, 49 persons enrolled in the MAC program earned master's degrees without ever having been on the SIUE campus.

The department of government and public affairs, which has been operating a similar weekend program for graduate programs in Washington, began offering graduate courses at SIUE.

Installation in Granite City and at the Federal Building in St. Louis.

Graduate government, urban affairs and education courses are offered at Scott Air Force Base.

All extramural programs are self-supporting and do not involve expenditure of tax money. The fees charged cover all expenses of instruction and faculty travel.

A Teaching-Learning Center was established jointly by SIUE and Roxana public schools, with the bulk of professional teacher training transferred from the university campus to the public schools to increase instructional relevance.

SIUE, Washington University and St. Louis University announced the implementation of cooperative doctoral degree programs. The three universities have agreed to exchange faculty, library facilities and other resources. At a press conference announcing the program, Dr. Rendleman said it will "move the educational opportunities offered by SIUE ahead."

The university accepted 14 area high school juniors in an experimental early admissions program.

The students enrolled for the summer quarter and had the option of returning to high school for their senior year or remaining at the university, provided they maintained a 3.5 grade point average on a 4-point scale.

Twelve students entered the program and all made 4-point or better averages. Eleven students decided to remain at the university.

During the year, SIUE maintained its traditional emphasis on community service oriented programs.

A statewide survey made in 1970 showed SIUE had the highest classroom utilization rate of any senior public university. The campus was originally planned for an enrollment of 5,500 and full quarter enrollment totaled 11,835.

Nonresidency of Madison Superintendent Disputed

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Staff Writer

The issue of Fred Riddle, superintendent of Madison School District 12, residing outside of the district, was raised by parents during a meeting of the school board Thursday night.

Mrs. Donna Crook, president of the Concerned Parents and Citizens group of Madison, said her group has canvassed parents of Madison several times and the same question was repeated by many residents.

"Why doesn't the superintendent of schools live in town?" she told the board.

"We feel if he lived in town, he would be more concerned with the issues we have in town," Mrs. Crook commented.

Board member Willie Walker came to Riddle's defense saying, "Residence is not a requirement for the job."

Ability and interest to do the job are the most important factors, he said. "The job should not be looked upon as the sole criteria," Walker responded.

Riddle, formerly lived in Madison before moving to Collinsville to accept the athletic superintendent's post.

When he returned to Madison Dec. 1, 1971, he maintained his Collinsville residence.

The board took no action on the issue.

In other business, the board awarded a $2,228 contract to H. Asadorian Service Co. of Granite City to carpet the first and second floors of the administrative building.

The bid was selected from four received.

Riddle reported that the district has received the first set of results from the Illinois Institute of Technology on the computer study of ways to improve the Madison schools.

He said the computer programmers are to consider the railroad tracks which divide the city in the first study and therefore the results were of questionable value.

The error, which assumed there were crossings at all major streets in the city, must be made, he added.

William Kinder, school board attorney, said that the board can not act on any integration plan until the federal courts rule on the busing issue Jan. 22. Madison parents, both for and against busing, initiated the federal court action and Judge Omer Poos of the Southern Division of Illinois is considering the arguments from both sides.

Riddle reported that the administration is considering a policy of mandatory retirement of employees at age 65. Kinder asked that action on the policy be tabled one month while he investigates the legality of mandatory retirement for school employees.

Nameoki-ICC to Meet On Train Blockages

Representatives of the Illinois Commerce Commission will meet within the next ten days with Nameoki Township officials to discuss complaints of long freight train blockages and the lack of safety devices at a number of railroad crossings in the township, the Nameoki Township Board was informed in a meeting Saturday morning.

Plans for the meeting were announced in a letter from the ICC in response to a letter by Albert Bell, township highway commissioner, reporting many complaints from township residents. No specific date has yet been set.

The board also received a letter from Governor-elect Dan Walker in which he said township drainage problems have been recognized as a major issue and that he has made his task force aware of the problem.

A letter from the Madison County Civil Defense organization requested the township keep records of damages caused by recent icing conditions.

Supervisor Louis Whitsell informed the board he has written the U. S. Treasury of the apparent loss in the mail of the township's federal revenue sharing check for $22,574. The check was mailed Dec. 12, but has not yet been received.

Whitsell said the board decided to advertise for bids to furnish a new gas furnace for the township building at 4250 Highway 162. The Saturday meeting was rescheduled from the regular meeting date which fell on Christmas Day.

The definitive agreement implementing the plan was subsequently approved by the board of directors of GSI and by each lender.
